

How Public Benefits Support Employment

APPLE HEALTH FOR WORKERS WITH DISABILITIES

BUILDING INCOME AND WEALTH

- One of the greatest fears of people with disabilities is loss of Medicaid (Apple Health)
- People become tethered to benefits which have low income and low resource limits
- Medicaid Buy-in programs offer additional options for people, allowing them to pay premiums and access Medicaid with higher income and resource limits

APPLE HEALTH FOR WORKERS WITH DISABILITIES

Washington State's Buy-in Program, Apple Health for Workers with Disabilities (HWD), offers:

- No income limit*
- No resource limit
- No upper age limit*
- Additional options*
- Premiums no more than 7.5% total monthly income

Changes started January 2020*

HWD HAS NO INCOME OR RESOURCE LIMIT

- This offers a work incentive, allowing people to earn or save as much money as they want
- Allows people with high unearned income to remain eligible for Medicaid
- People do not have to worry about raises or promotions
- Unique to HWD

Income not counted for eligibility, but is counted to determine monthly premium

HWD HAS NO UPPER AGE LIMIT

- Available to people age 16 and older
- Allows people age 65 and older to pursue or continue their work and saving efforts

HWD PROVIDES LASTING ASSET PROTECTION

Individuals exiting HWD can protect resources:

- Account must be maintained separately;
- Value excluded as resource when determining eligibility for another medical assistance program.

ELIGIBILITY CONSIDERATIONS

HWD is for working individuals:

- Must be working at time of eligibility
- Must be working at time of eligibility anniversary date
- There are provisions about what qualifies as employment.

Must qualify under the Social Security disability definition, with some exceptions regarding:

- Substantial Gainful Activity
- Medical Improvement
