

Support for Parents of Children with Disabilities or Special Healthcare Needs

Most parents like to talk about their children, and who better to talk with than another parent? Parents enjoy learning through sharing their parenting stories and experiences with one another. Many times, parents of children with disabilities or special healthcare needs have even greater necessity for this kind of supportive connection as they deal with unique issues not commonly shared by all parents. Their friends and family are often unable to provide first-hand guidance because they lack this shared experience. Parents often feel isolated and alone.

But we can help.

Parent to Parent Support Programs of Washington State -

Washington State Parent to Parent (P2P) is a network of 26 Local County Programs that provide outreach and support to all counties in the state. There is also a parent support program at Seattle Children's Hospital.

Activities include:

- Free, confidential services
- Matching parents in one-to-one relationships with skilled, experienced parents called Helping Parents. Matches are based on diagnoses and family issues.
- Follow-up by local County Coordinators on each P2P referral who also help with systems navigation and resource identification
- Culturally relevant services
- Support and social groups for the family
- Information/Educational Trainings
- Leadership trainings for parents who want to become volunteer Helping Parent (H/P)
- Newsletters, Facebook & E-groups
